PENNYLANE

Alanis Morissette gives thanks to India, frailty, consequence and silence — concrete things and abstract concepts. Dido sings praise for the best day of her life. Led Zep front-man Robert Plant thanked his wife back then with a song for walking the miles, while Jimmy Page played evocative passages on an acoustic.

Dig this: in a study conducted by Reader's Digest, Metro Manila ranked among the least courteous cities in the world. Seems hard to believe, huh? Don't we all have specific people to thank for the little things that mean a lot?

Perhaps this is why the National Thank You Day was invented. Toblerone, the Swiss chocolate brand and the city of Manila are on a sweet quest to bring gratitude back as they are the first to declare a "Thank You Day" in the country.

"Every day, we are presented with situations that allow us to show common courtesy and appreciation for others. Toblerone has been a universal token of gratitude around the world and has been witness to these moments," says Jondy Syjuco, marketing manager of Toblerone. "We are happy to be Mayor Alfredo Lim's partner in his efforts to bring back the sense of gratitude in Manila."

To make things extra sweeter, some local musicians were asked by Toblerone to create their original "thank you" tunes to encourage Filipinos to express their gratitude more often. Just log on to www.thankyoudayphilippines.com and download their tracks for free.

So, here are some musicians and their thank you tracks especially made for Toblerone's official Thank You Day soundtrack:

CYNTHIA ALEXANDER

Folk star Cynthia Alexander is known for her compelling melodies and layered instrumentation masterfully honed with a poet's rigor. She fuses elements of folk, world beat, dance, new age and jazz into a sonic montage without losing her distinctive Pinoy sound especially in the haunting rhythms of Tempestuous Tempers.
